

Learning Tool:

FLASHCARDS

To get the most of these lessons:

1. Create quick-reference flashcards containing the strategies you'd like to implement.
2. Keep the cards with you where you can see them throughout the day, and practice using them whenever you can.
3. Once you can use the strategies effectively without referencing the card, move along to a new card and strategy.

For your convenience, we've provided you with a sample including four of the strategies you'll learn in this lesson.

Feel free to use these cards to get started.

Once you're ready to move along, use the template provided to create cards of your own.

Effectively Respond to Objections

1. I'd like to be helpful...
2. However, I'm afraid...
3. So I'm wondering...

For example:

"I'd like to be helpful and come in tonight after hours, however, I'm afraid I have another commitment, so I'm wondering, can I come in early tomorrow, let's say 6:00?"

Danger Phrase I'm sorry!

Remember, people connect us with others who speak the same way we speak, and then attribute the characteristics of those people to us.

Don't connect yourself with people who say, "I'm sorry" all the time; they're very rarely powerful communicators.

If you need to apologize, simply say: "I was wrong, and I apologize."

Clarify Instructions

When giving a long list of instructions, make it easier for the brain to process and remember by breaking it up into chunks, like this:

1. First of all ...
2. Secondly ...
3. Finally ...

For Example:

"First of all, do steps one, two, three, secondly, move along to four, five, and six, and finally, wrap it up with seven, eight, nine, and ten."

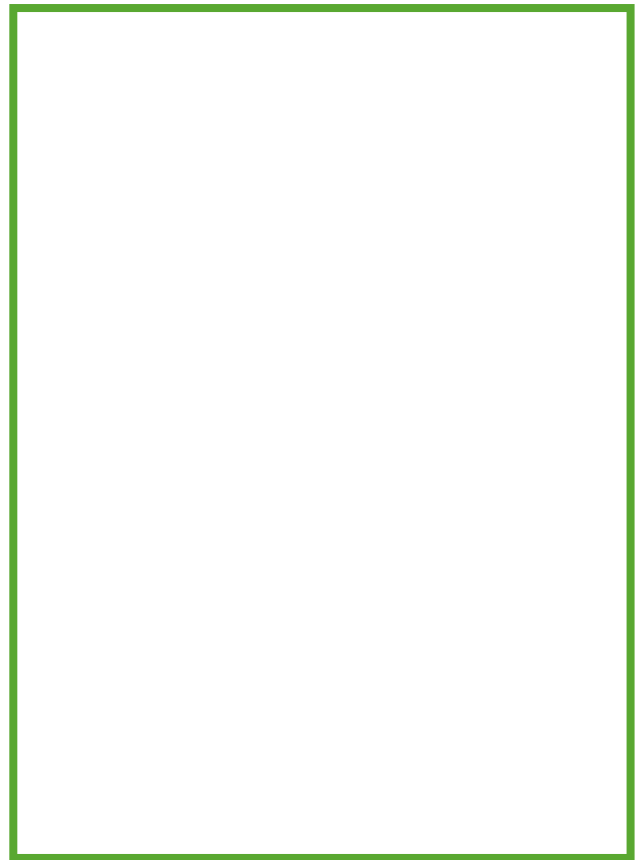

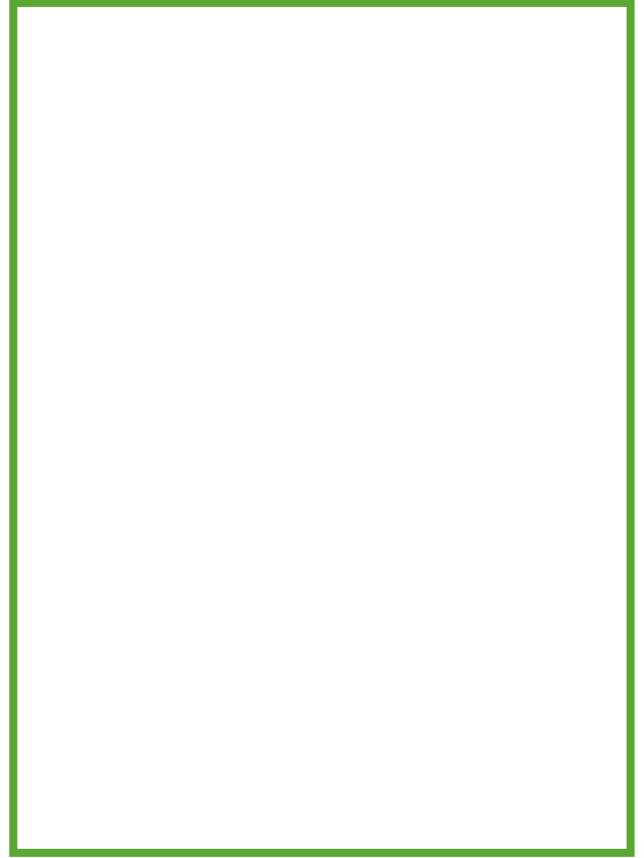

Power Phrase I have an answer!

Instead of telling people you have ideas (which are of no use to them), talk about the things people are looking for and hope to find with you.

No one is looking for your ideas.

For Example:

*"I've thought about what you said, and believe I have come up with a couple of solutions you'll really like.
First of all ..."*
